THE DEAD OFFICIATING AT THEIR OWN FUNERALS.

The wonderful progress in inventing and discoveries cannot be better illustrated than in the fact that the voice of the dead can be heard at the dead's own funeral. There are some who will probably doubt that a dead person can sing a funeral hymn or deliver a funeral discourse, but this is possible and has been done.

On Sunday, the 23d of February, 1890, the funeral service of the Rev. Thomas Allen Horne, took place at Larchmont, New York. It was one of the strangest services of the kind ever known. It would seem that Bellamy's queerest fancy could not produce anything more astonishing than this funeral service. When the friends had assembled in the afternoon to pay their last respects to the dead minister, and the hour had come to begin the service, a voice, almost angelic in its tone, and filled with the deepest pathos, came from the center-table, singing that beautiful funeral hymn:

A few more years shall roll,
A few more seasons come,
And we shall be with those we love,
In the land beyond the tomb.

The effect was marvellously touching for almost everybody present distinctly recognize the voice of Mrs. Horne, who had died last summer. A feeling, said of superstitious awe pervaded the whole assembly, and every eye was dimmed by tears. But presently the friends learned that the voice so clearly recognized, came from a photograph, and then wonder took the place of superstitious awe.

When the hymn was sung, Charles Horne, a nephew of the deceased, and who seemed to have the service in charge, quietly readjusted the machine by placing therein another roll of paper, and then came from that wonderful machine the voice of the dead minister preaching his own funeral sermon. The voice was well known to all present and it sounded so strange and weird that two women fainted and had to be carried out. At the part in the address where the deceased's wife, who had died eight months previously, was referred to, the voice of the deceased minister had evidently broken down, and from the instrument the terrible sounds of a strong man weeping and unable to restrain himself broke out with terrible real and force.

But the strangest thing was yet to come. When the sermon was concluded and the voice of the dead quietly died away, the nephew arranged two machines on the table, and then was heard the soprano of the wife and the baritone of the husband joining in a beautiful duet suitable for the occasion. It is said that several in the audience tried to join in the familiar hymn, but the voice of the dead and those of the living were so strangely contrasted, that the living voices choked with emotion.

The Edison photograph was used, and before Mr. and Mrs. Horne died they agreed to this peculiar service and used the machine accordingly. Mr. Edison suggested that this might be as far back as 1896.

SOME PATRIOTIC VIEWS ON THE BENNETT LAW.

A few days ago the Rev. Father De Kever, of Oshkosh, gave a public expression of his views on the Bennett law which are so thoroughly American in spirit that they are worth repeating. In a conversation with one of the North-western reporters he said:

The opposition to the Bennett law comes largely from those who misunderstand its meaning and regard it as an opponent to our parochial schools, which it is not. I for one am in favor of the enforcement of the law for the reason that every one should speak the English language and this law in time will render the language a necessity. The teachers here in our school agree with me.

When asked whether the Catholics, as a rule, support the law, Father De Kever answered:

Yes, I think they do. The opposition is largely from the German faction of the church. In fact I think nearly every one who supports the law. Our children, who are coming here and are people begin to appreciate the fact. Other languages should be studied simply for convenience, but English should be first.

Father De Kever was asked for an opinion as to the cause of so much controversy over the Bennett law, and so many misstatements, in regard to its provisions by its enemies, and his answer was as follows:

I think it has resulted from the fact that several have written about it without thoroughly understanding its meaning. If I were the dictator to those that could not speak English I would simply allow the privilege of working here and paying taxes; but not allow them to vote or hold office. I wish there had been a similar law fifty years ago, then at the present time there would be fewer who are not familiar with English. In fact I believe the Bennett law to be right for the one great reason that all contracts, legal documents, etc., are drawn up in English and demand a thorough knowledge of our language to be understood. This knowledge every citizen should possess.

In some respects Father De Kever is right, but it is no doubt true that a considerable part of the opposition to the law is founded on the prejudice among certain Lutheran ministers against the English language and the public school system. The Bennett law in no wise interferes with parochial schools. It does not prevent the teaching of German in the parochial or the public schools. It does not attempt to interfere with the teaching of Catholicism or Lutheranism in the private schools. The teachers can cram the children full of their respective church creeds from Monday morning till Saturday night, and during every week in the year, and there is no law and should not be any, to hinder them. It will be plainly seen, then, that the

TWO GAMBLERS ENGAGE IN A BLOODY SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Men, Women, and Children Crawl Under Seats for Safety—Other Criminal Matters.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 28.—Mark A. Baren, a Chicago gambler, was shot and dangerously wounded by Charles Hatfield of Henderson, Ky., on an Iron Mountain train near Dexter, Mo., Tuesday night about 10 o'clock. Baren, a companion, George Jones, also of Chicago, had engaged in a game of poker with Hatfield and a traveling man named Keller.

It was a "skin" game, and Hatfield, who looked like a farmer, caught the idea after losing about $700, and started for Baren with an ugly-looking revolver in his hand. He struck Baren with the weapon, then shot him in the wrist and right breast, inflicting ugly and possibly fatal wounds. There was a wild scene on the train. Women screamed and fainted and men dodged behind seats until all the shooting was over.

Without a word Hatfield turned when his revolver was emptied and coolly walked into the next car. Baren was carried to Poplar Bluff, and when he reached there was unconscious from loss of blood. No effort was made to catch Hatfield, who left the train before it reached Poplar Bluff, it being evident that he was not to blame.

GOV. BOIES INAUGURATED.

The Ceremonies at Des Moines Participated in by Chicago Democrats.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 28.—The Cook County Democratic club and a large number of citizens arrived here Thursday morning and were escorted to club headquarters, where an address of welcome was made by Walter McHenry and responded to by President Perkins and C. Porter Johnson. E. H. Hunter, on behalf of the Mayor, extended the freedom of the city to the members of the club while here.

Large delegations from all over the State were present. Chicago was given the place of honor in the procession. The procession moved promptly at 2 o'clock in the following order:

Platoon of police, Third Regiment band, Cook county club and band, Hawkeye club, and clubs from other cities.

The Governor's staff occupied the first carriage. In the second carriage were Gov.-elect Boies, Gov. Larrabee, Chief Justice Rathbun and Judge Grim. The other carriages were occupied by Lieut. Govs. Pegner and Hull and other distinguished citizens.

After parading the principal streets the procession proceeded to the Capitol, where the inauguration of Mr. Boies took place.

The Governor's address was a long one, and dealt chiefly with the liquor law and railroad issues.

STATUE OF DR. WOOLSEY.

Prof. John F. Weir Has Just Completed the Bronze Model.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 27.—Prof. John F. Weir of the Yale art school has completed a model for the bronze statue of Dr. Woolsey. The statue is to be sixteen feet high, including a granite pedestal, the figure being of heroic size.

President Woolsey is represented as seated in a Greek chair, symbolical of the professorship of Greek, which he filled here previous to his election to the place of president in 1846. He is clothed in his presidential robes, symbolizing his position of chief of the university. One hand holds a book, while the other rests in his lap. The face was sculptured from life and was verified by a facial cast, also taken from life. The pose of the head is erect and the eyes look straight forward. The inscriptions for four sides of the pedestal have not yet been decided upon, nor is it known exactly what the statue, when completed, will be put.

Prof. Weir has been over two years designing this model and it will probably be about the same length of time before the bronze statue will be finished.

BEST-SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Wisconsin Farmers to Organize to Manufacture That Article.

WAUKESHA, Wis., Feb. 28.—A meeting was held here attended by a number of farmers, to take the necessary steps for the establishment of a beet-sugar factory at Menomonee Falls. The plan is to organize a company with a paid-in capital of $25,000, of which twenty-nine farmers in the immediate vicinity propose to subscribe $1,000. A German expert in the beet-sugar industry will enter the employ of the company, which will be the first practical effort that has been made in Wisconsin to make sugar from beets. A Milwaukee capitalist is said to be ready to advance any balance that is not taken by the farmers. Another meeting will be held at Menomonee Falls next Saturday.

Alexander, Ryan and Alger were boys who had run away from home at Beloit, Wis., and were concealed in a stock car.

William Waldorf Astor's Riches.

New York, Feb. 28.—The admission to probate of the will of the late John Jacob Astor makes William Waldorf Astor the wealthiest man in America, if not in the world. The estates of John Jacob Astor and William Waldorf Astor, consolidated, are believed to be equivalent to nearly $200,000,000.

New York, Feb. 28.—Broker Pell, under indictment for his connection with the wrecking of the Lenox hill bank, has been surrendered by one of his bondsmen, and is once more locked up. Pell's counsel made application for a reduction of bail, but Judge Martine decided that it must remain at $20,000. This Pell was unable to secure. Cashier Van Zandt has been admitted to bail. His bond was signed by his brother and his brother's wife.

BLIZZARDS AND FLOODS.

Snow Storms in the West and High Waters Elsewhere.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—Dispatches from Missouri and Kansas state that a blizzard from the Northwest has been prevailing throughout these States. The blizzard was preceded by a snow storm, during which snow fell to a depth of three or four inches, covering the winter wheat and sheltering it from the severe cold. The river below at a high velocity and the thermometer fell to about zero. The fall of snow during the day was light and occasioned no serious delay to railway traffic.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Feb. 28.—A heavy snow storm has been raging here and street car traffic has been greatly impeded. Between eight and ten inches of snow is on the ground and the storm continues.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 28.—The river at this point registered 10.5 last evening and was rising at the rate of an inch an hour. Old river-men say that water will go to the February rise of 1884, when the river reached its highest point ever known here, 48.5 feet.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 28.—The Ohio river has reached a flood stage. One of the elevated road stations on the city front has been cut off. A sea of mud was started and a number of families and districts submerged in 1883 moved out, but there is no fear of such a deluge as then. The river is still rising about an inch an hour. The Ohio & Mississippi road between here and Cincinnati is closed.

SENTENCES BY "JUDGE."

Ignorance lies suspicious in her hair.

A need must first be felt before it can be supplied. Love measures all things by the height of one object. There is but little truth in epigrams, maxims, and aphorisms.

There is always some one found to provide for idiots and sluggards. The heart is always instinctive—quick to perceive and ready to act. If one is impressed with the exquisite tact of some simple deed and looks into the matter it will transpire that the suggestion of the act came from the heart.

Man is in a chronic state of longing after the unattainable—not unattainable because impossible to attain, but in the sense of its being unattainable at the moment of its desirability. Were he once completely and entirely satisfied, that rejection would prove his coup de grace.

SENTENCES OF THE "JUDGE."

Those who love, love to serve. The only drawback to one's perfect happiness is one's self.

There is a harmony which underlies the most abrupt transitions. The name of friendship is profaned almost as often as the name of the deity.

Those who make friendship a first interest will be stranded by the first strain placed upon it.

No gate stands barred to him who works with the tools of patience in the light of understanding.

When gratitude exceeds love the tongue is eloquent; when love is greatest the eyes alone speak.

It has been said that love excites gratitude. If this is true it is because gratitude is swallowed up by the love which it augments.

MR ATKINSON SEATED.

THE SITTING WEST VIRGINIA MEMBER STEPS ASIDE.

End of Another Contested Election Case in the House—Other News From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—In the House the contested election case from West Virginia between Mr. Pendleton, the sitting member, a Democrat, and Mr. Atkinson, the Republican contestant, was taken up. Mr. Pendleton was accorded an opportunity to speak in his own behalf. He said that he felt it his duty to speak, although he knew he was addressing a jury that was prejudiced against him. He believed that he had carried the First district of West Virginia by means as fair, as honorable, and as upright as had ever been used in any election in the history of the country. He reviewed the evidence in detail, controverting the statements made by the supporters of the majority.

Mr. Cooper of Ohio closed the debate with an argument in support of the claim of the contestant. The vote was taken on the minority resolution declaring Pendleton entitled to the seat. It was defeated—yeas, 142; nays, 159—a strict party vote.

The vote then recurred on the majority resolution, which Mr. Atkinson, the Democrats refrained from voting, their object being to have the contestant seated by less than a quorum, so that the question of the right of the Speaker to convene a quorum might be taken before the courts. The vote resulted—yeas, 162; nays, 0. The Speaker counting a quorum.

Mr. O'Ferrall, of Virginia, raised the point of no quorum, but the Speaker ignored him, and the newly elected member appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office amid applause on the Republican side.

Mr. McKinley, of Ohio, from the committee on rules, reported a resolution making a special order for March 4 and 5 for bills reported from the committee on public buildings and grounds. It was adopted.

The House then proceeded in committee of the whole to the consideration of urgent deficiency bill.

The Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The following bills were passed in the Senate: To authorize the Oregon & Washington Bridge company to construct and maintain a bridge across the Columbia river between the State of Oregon and the State of Washington and to establish it as a post-road; for the erection and location of a bronze statue to Christopher Columbus and the removal of the naval monument to a new site (this bill appropriates $75,000 and fixes as the site for the statue the circle on the western entrance to the capitol, on Pennsylvania avenue, where the naval monument stands; the latter is to be removed to the triangle bounded by Connecticut avenue and Twentieth and C streets; the contract is to be made by the Secretary of the Navy, the chairman of the joint committee on the library, and the architect of the capitol); to authorize the construction of the railroad bridge across the Missouri river in the county of Monona, in the State of Iowa, and in the county of Burr, in the State of Nebraska; to amend the timber culture act as to questions of details.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the bill to declare unlawful trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and production.

Mr. Sherman, who reported the bill from the committee on finance, said that he had been instructed by the committee to move to strike out the third section, which fixes penalties for the offense of entering into trusts and combinations.

Mr. George opposed the bill both on the ground of its inefficiency, if the bill was constitutional, and on the ground that Congress had not the constitutional power to enact it. Mr. George's argument was mainly of a legal and technical character, designed to prove that it would be impossible ever to get consideration under the bill, and as to the civil suits provided for he said that few suits would ever be instituted. He characterized the bill as an attempt that would aggravate rather than diminish the evil.

Mr. Reagan gave notice of an amendment which he intended to offer to the bill, being the bill offered by him Dec. 4 last.

The bill went over without action.

WHERE IS THAT LEAK?

Senators Still Trying to Find How Executive Secrets Escape.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The Delphic investigating committee continued its inquiry into the methods by which proceedings of executive sessions of the Senate become public. Jules Gribble of the New York Herald, A. J. Hall of the Associated Press, George Bain of the United Press, M. G. Seckendorf of the New York Tribune, and Frank A. Dwyer of the New York Times testified that they had written reports of the proceedings of executive sessions of the Senate of the 12th and 18th inst., at which the nomination of Gen. Morgan was confirmed and the British extradition treaty was ratified, but when asked to give the sources of their information declined to do so upon the ground that it would be a gross betrayal of confidence.

Under a new law put into effect when the Senate went into executive session last evening the press lobby, in which are located the capitol offices of the Associated Press and United Press, as well as all committee-rooms on the gallery floor, were cleared, and strict watch kept over them until the Senate doors were opened again. This, the reporters disarranged all press business on the Senate side for some time.

The door leading into the document-room from the corridor, twenty feet away from the Senate hall, was securely locked in order to keep out any newspaper men who might have succeeded in evading the cordon of guards at the bottom of the stairs. The doorkeepers were also required to move their chairs and their persons further away from the lobby.

The Senate expects to accomplish by this change is not clear. Reporters generally are not dull of hearing, but it was never charged that they could hear through four feet of solid iron or through two heavy doors, one of iron and one half thick and covered with terra-cotta balize.

The executive session was devoted to confirming nominations and receiving reports from committees. A favorable report was made by the commerce committee upon the nomination of H. C. Warmouth to be collector of the port of New Orleans.

TO COUNT THE CHINESE.

Scheme to Keep the Celestians from Coming to America.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—McKenna of California reported favorably on the House from the census committee the bill introduced by Mr. Morrow to provide for a complete enumeration of the Chinese population of this country. The bill proposes to furnish each Chinese person with a certificate describing him, and that any Chinese person found in the United States after he taking of the census without a certificate shall be returned to the place from whence he came.

"The necessity for such identification of the Chinese persons lawfully residing in the United States," says the report, "arises out of the fact that notwithstanding the legislation that has been had for the purpose of excluding Chinese immigration, such immigration continues to come into the United States, clandestinely over the End of Another Contested Election Case in the House—Other News From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—In the House the contested election case from West Virginia between Mr. Pendleton, the sitting member, a Democrat, and Mr. Atkinson, the Republican contestant, was taken up. Mr. Pendleton was accorded an opportunity to speak in his own behalf. He said that he felt it his duty to speak, although he knew he was addressing a jury that was prejudiced against him. He believed that he had carried the First district of West Virginia by means as fair, as honorable, and as upright as had ever been used in any election in the history of the country. He reviewed the evidence in detail, controverting the statements made by the supporters of the majority.

PRACTICAL FARMERS.

They Are Exchanging Ideas for Mutual Benefit.—The Last Day of the Session.

THE BUSINESS TRANSACTED AT TO-DAY'S MEETING.

They Adjourned this Afternoon After a Very Pleasant and Profitable Session at Lippin's Opera House.

Last Evening's Session. Notwithstanding the inclement weather the hall last evening was comfortably filled. Nearly every seat down stairs was taken, while some were in the gallery.

The first number in the programme was music by the Bower City Band. They rendered two selections in their usual good style.

Mr. Aaron Frongton, of Albany, was then introduced and spoke on "Our Common School." Mr. Frongton read a selection from one of Robert Ingersoll's compositions on the subject, after which he talked for some minutes. He said that the first teacher in history is the mother, and as the mother is the child will be. The fact that nine-tenths of the citizens of the United States receive their education in the common schools proves the importance of these schools, and that they should be of the very best character. A discussion was brought on by Mr. Frongton's paper, in which Supt. David Thorne, Supt. I. N. Stewart, H. B. Waite, D. F. Snyre and W. H. Harrison took part.

The quartette consisting of Mrs. J. W. St. John, Mrs. C. B. Conrad, Mr. C. N. Vankirk and Mr. C. L. Clark were then introduced and sang "Where are You Going My Pretty Maid?" They received an encore and responded by repeating the same piece. The quartette had but few rehearsals on this piece, but notwithstanding it was perfectly rendered.

Miss Jennie Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracy Brown, was next in a recitation. She recited "The Schoolmaster's Guest" in a way that called forth prolonged applause. She is a pupil of Mrs. Day's and it was her first appearance on the stage.

Mrs. J. B. Haviland, of LaPrairie, then read a paper on "School Benefits." Mrs. Haviland's paper was one of the best during the institute and was listened to with marked attention.

The Benjo and Guitars club was then announced and favored the audience with a selection, and were twice recalled. The club have had but two rehearsals; together, and it was their first appearance before an audience. The club consists of E. G. Mordant and G. F. Noland, banjo; Will S. Ford and H. Drummond, guitars.

"How the Old Horse Won the Bet," by Mrs. J. B. Day, was next. For an encore she read an extract from "Milk and Honey." Mrs. Day's appearance was always the signal for loud applause.

The quartette then sang "Hush Thee My Baby," after which the meeting adjourned until this morning at 9:30.

This morning's session was called to order by Superintendent Morrison at ten o'clock. The first speaker was Mr. Alexander Galbraith, of the firm of Galbraith Bros. Mr. Galbraith spoke as follows:

The Breeding of Draft Horses. In the city of Janesville, famous over the continent for its draft horses, no apology is needed for a discussion of this subject. It is legitimate for sweethearts to use sugary language in a candy store. Few departments of the agricultural industry of this great country are more important than that of the breeding of draft horses, and none has been more uniformly profitable during recent years. Croakers or prophets of evil and also those who are treated in slight horses have sought to belittle the business, but in fact they are about the only commodity on which the farmer is allowed to set his own price. The quality and size of the average draft horse in this country is today compared with that of ten or fifteen years ago show a wonderful advancement—an advancement which may be considered phenomenal, and I think that I will dispense with further proof in favor of the statement that the improvement in draft horses has been a source of benefit to the whole country. It is doubtless true that in certain sections of the country there may be too many draft horses, and that consequently the terms of service are reduced as to make the business unprofitable to the tiller; but after all, this is an evil which ultimately rectifies itself. The draft horse is a more thoroughbred animal and also better bred. There are yet many counties in some of the middle and western states, not excepting Wisconsin, where not a single pure bred draft horse is to be found, and where the people are only beginning to recognize the necessity of raising heavy horses, and appreciate the benefits to be derived therefrom.

One advantage which the draft horse breeder has over the breeder of road horses is that he has fewer sacrifices to make on account of blemishes or carriage faults. If a road horse or a carriage horse is defective in any way, it is liable to be thrown out, small or great, or even a split, gets cut on a barbed wire or as friend McKinney used to call it, "at a barbed wire." It is not so with the draft horse. A very little allowance having to be made for a small blemish on him. This enables the draft horse breeder to get a better average price on his sale. I don't want to speak of a purely light horse, but they occupy a very prominent and important part in the horse breeding of America; but as an illustration of my argument, I will suppose a farmer raises a trotting-bred or roadster colt, and the same number of draft colts annually. The first man, as every one knows, requires considerably more care and attention and an extra expenditure of money in fitting them for the market. Out of the six colts raised, he sells perhaps two for $200 each and the other two for $100 each and the remaining two he sells at public sale for $50 each or less blemished or inferior bring $100 each. This I think is a very liberal estimate and leaves an average price of $150 head. I have not taken any account of the difference in the value of a pure bred trotter. While such chances always exist and doubtless leads a facsimile to the business, the experience of a few minutes will make it generally apparent that the draft horse is a more valuable animal than the roadster or trotter. The draft horse is a more valuable animal than the roadster or trotter. The draft horse is a more valuable animal than the roadster or trotter.

WHAT THEY SAY OF US.

Many Compliments from the Members of the Wisconsin Press Association.

"THEY LIKED TO MINGLE WITH JANESVILLE PEOPLE."

Complimentary Words from the La Crosse Chronicle and the Weyauwega Chronicle.

[From the La Crosse Chronicle.] The winter meeting of the Wisconsin Press Association at Janesville was not largely attended as such business meetings ought to be. There were not over fifty men who are active newspaper workers, in attendance, but they were well paid for their visit.

It is not, however, of the editors so much as of the city where they met that the Chronicle wishes to speak. It is one of the pleasant and valuable features of these meetings of the members of the state press, that they are enlarging their knowledge of the men of their own calling, and at the same time getting a store of valuable information about the cities and towns of their state.

When the editors visited La Crosse last summer, there were dozens of them who saw this city for the first time, and dozens more who saw it fifteen or twenty years before when it was a collection of wooden buildings and earl dooms. It has been very apparent in reading the state papers since that time that the importance of La Crosse has visibly grown, in the prominence given to her news.

This is not the result of effort, it is simply evidence that the editors take more interest in La Crosse because they know more about it.

But it is Janesville that is in mind now. Many of the editors who visited Janesville did so for the first time. It is to be regretted that a very full business programme gave most of the visitors a small chance to go into close observation, but the substantial character of the city, its solid manufacturing foundation, and the character and cordiality of its people, were surface indications of the ability and solidity of the place, that were impressed on even the most superficial observer. The reception given to the editors at the handsome army by the Business Men's Association, which included a ball, brought out a representation of the men and women of Janesville, that no visitor could look upon, without admitting that ability, beauty and the graces that made up the social charm, were all there.

Janesville has a reputation something above 12,000. She is situated in the heart of a rich and old agricultural district. Her chief industries are in the line of manufacturing. Two cotton mills and one woolen mill produce several million of yards, and whose stock is held at $270 a share the par value being $100, are among the most important of her institutions and they have a population of 12,000. Another line of business in which Janesville leads the state is in the line of manufacturing. There are six firms of horse importers there, the best ones importing 200 annually and owning a breeding farm in Scotland. All the breeds of foreign draft horses are represented and bred there. There are well-educated, and reputable Russian, are also a large number of finely bred trotters and runners, bred and owned here. Two large concerns manufacture agricultural machinery, and one manufactures carriages and wagons, extensively. In all Janesville has over thirty manufacturing establishments.

A beautiful little souvenir was given to the newspaper men, containing five pages of the city, with a little descriptive letter press. A cut from this with the careful consideration of every man who reads the newspaper, as it undoubtedly touches some of the most powerful social springs of Janesville's success as a manufacturing city. The quotation is as follows:

"There are some things to which Janesville has no claim. Its citizens do not boast of the fact that they have a big municipal debt, or that they have a big municipal blessing. On the subject they may be properly called cranks; for no project of any kind would receive deliberate consideration which had not attached to it a 'good deed' of generous dimensions. The present outstanding obligations of the city are not equal to the amount of interest which is annually extorted from the pockets of many of her citizens. As a result, the city is in a position to pay no interest on its debt, and the citizens enjoy contentment and security."

It is possible to err in this conservative spirit, and there is a difference in cities that must be taken into account, but one thing is certain, low taxes and economical government are great points, when viewed from the standpoint of the man who is looking for a big manufacturing enterprise.

Janesville is conservative, but she is sound, and the hasty observer can but agree with her policy as a prudent excellent result in her practice.

The tobacco business and a host of other industries that La Crosse knows little of, would furnish material for a long list of the space points, but as longer than the writer would be glad to indulge in, but for this limitation.

As a personal experience the Janesville meeting was a most agreeable one. From the hospitality of the committee to the personal kindness of such citizens as Hon. J. B. Doe, Jr., Hon. Ogden H. Fetter, the intangible "Tom" Croft and the local "press gang," there was everything to lead one to heartily endorse the sentiment of Governor Hoar, "let a little speech when he told them he 'liked to mingle' with Janesville people."
